CEREMONY PRACTICES

The following is a list of practices for the 30th Space Wing change-of-command ceremony at 10 a.m. Monday.

7:30 a.m. today: key personnel practice – uniform of the day

8:30 a.m. Monday: key personnel practice – service dress.

FREE CONCERT

George Thorogood and the Destroyers present a free concert at 3 p.m. Thursday on the base parade grounds. Local band Cold Shot opens the show.

RETIREMENT

Senior Master Sgt. William Burtt, 576th Flight Test Squadron, retires at 10 a.m. today in the conference room of building 8500.

COMMITTEE CHAIR

Team Vandenberg members can apply to serve as chairperson for the Hispanic Heritage Committee by calling the military equal opportunity office at 606-0370 for more information. Deadline to apply for the position is June 20.

CHANGE OF COMMAND

Detachment 1, 22nd Space Operations Squadron holds a change-of-command ceremony at 11 a.m. Thursday at the Vandenberg Tracking Station. The incoming commander is Maj. David Pavilatis and the outgoing commander is Lt. Col. Shawn Rife who will be assigned to United States Strategic Command at Offut AFB, Neb.

CONTROLLED BURN

The Vandenberg Fire Department conducts controlled burns from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through July 3 at 13th Street and Watt Road. The burn takes place Mondays-Fridays on days with favorable weather conditions.

BIRTHDAY MEAL

Breakers' next birthday meal is June 25 for enlisted members with birthdays in April, May and June. For more information, call Staff Sgt. Jennifer Kottke at 606-3219.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Patriot Voices needs volunteers to sing the national anthem at various local functions and events. Practices are Mondays at 4:45 p.m. in the Chapel 1 sanctuary. Call Capt. Zach Guza at 606-4725 for more information.

VEHICLE LICENSE FEE

Military personnel whose state of legal residence is not California can take advantage of a program that exempts them from the state's vehicle license fee.

Applicants must fill out a revised statement of facts, which requests the military member's branch of service, duty station, unit, commanding officer's phone number and state of legal

Minuteman III launch successful

New maintenance role pays off for 576th FLTS

By SENIOR AIRMAN BRIAN HILL
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

Team Vandenberg and a task force from the 91st Space Wing, Minot AFB, N.D., successfully launched a Minuteman III intercontinental ballistic missile at 1:01 a.m. Wednesday from North Vandenberg as part of the force development evaluation program.

The force development evaluation program tests the accuracy and reliability of the ICBM element of the nation's strategic deterrent forces. The missile's three unarmed re-entry vehicles traveled approximately 4,200 miles to a pre-determined target at the Kwajalein Missile Range in the western chain of the Marshall Islands.

For the 576th Flight Test Squadron here, this launch was the first test of their new additional maintenance role in emplacing the missile as well as performing startup procedures. The expanded role of the 576th FLTS considerably lessens the size of the team needed from the operational missile bases in order to launch.

"The unit took a lot of pride in being included in the combined task force," said Lt. Col. Michael Fortney, 576th FLTS commander, minutes after the launch.

"This is a different aspect for them because they have never formally been designated as part of the task force."

The six-person task force from Minot – experienced combat crewmembers – did still turn the launch keys.

"[Being part of the task force] means that headquarters has placed a lot of confidence in [the team] to perform this mission," Fortney added.

"We stack, perform the maintenance, then launch – and no one else in the world does that."

Air Force adjusts reenlistment bonuses

■ AIR FORCE PERSONNEL CENTER - Putting incentives where they are needed most, the Air Force recently revised reenlistment bonuses, adding or increasing 40 career field zones and decreasing or removing 100.

The revision to the Selective Reenlistment Bonus program includes additions of zones in two career fields that previously did not have a bonus. In addition, 10 career fields that previously had some type of bonus were deleted from the revised list.

"The SRB program is a retention tool the Air Force uses as an incentive to help keep the right people in the right jobs to accomplish our mission," said Maj. Gen. Peter Sutton, director of learning and force development, Headquarters U.S. Air Force, Washington, D.C.

"This change [in SRBs] is the result in part of increased retention rates. But airmen should also remember that SRBs are not an entitlement," the general said.

The criteria used for determining which enlisted skills receive an SRB includes current and projected skill and total manning levels; reenlistment rates and category of enlistment, career field force structure changes, and inputs from functional career field managers. SRBs are authorized in 0.5 increments (or, multiples) and in three reenlistment zones for personnel with between 17 months and 14 years of service.

The revised AFSC listing of SRB skills includes 12 Zone A (17 months to 6 years of service), 14 Zone B (6-10 years of service), and seven Zone C (10-14 years of service) multiplier increases; two Zone A, four Zone B, and one Zone C addition, and 38 Zone A, 20 Zone B and five Zone C multiplier decreases from the previous list published in January 2002.

Ten Zone A, 15 Zone B and 12 Zone C SRBs were deleted; two new AFSCs were added and 10 AFSCs were deleted in either Zones A, B, C or some combination.

The SRB additions and multiple increases are effective June 4. The SRB multiple decreases and deletions are effective July 4.

A complete list of AFSCs with SRB entitlements is available online at www.afpc.randolph.af.mil/enlskills/Reenlistments/reenlistments.htm. For more information, call the 30th Mission Support Squadron military personnel flight's reenlistment office.

Worley ends command on high note

Two-year reign leads to commander's nomination for general star

By AIRMAN JUANIKA GLOVER
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

Team Vandenberg members welcomed Colonel Robert M. Worley II, 30th Space Wing commander, to Vandenberg May 30, 2001 and will say goodbye to him in a change-of-command ceremony Monday as he heads off to Peterson AFB, Colo.

Early in his command, Worley said becoming the commander of Vandenberg was a dream come true.

"I think any officer that is career-minded in the Air Force dreams of being a wing commander some day. To be here, and especially at Vandenberg is a real thrill for me," he said.

at the Pentagon's Programs Directorate as chief of the space superiority division.

The graduate of the U.S. Air Force Academy brought 23 years of Air Force experience with him.

"One of the things I have been impressed with through my tenure here is the mission focus and immense talent of our people through even the busiest and most intense times," Worley said. "I believe an officer's training for command starts from day one in the Air Force; you learn what works and what doesn't work from all the leaders you serve under in your career."

"I know the new commander has a great team of people to help him make the adjustment," the commander said. "I'm proud to have taken command of such an outstanding group of professionals. The men and women of Team Vandenberg have proven time and time again that they're the best of the best," Worley said.

During his 25 years of service, Worley has earned the Legion of Merit, Defense Meritorious Service Medal, Meritorious Service Medal with three oak leaf clusters, Air Force Commendation Medal and the Air Force Achievement Medal with one oak leaf cluster. Worley also received a nomination for brigadier general in December 2002.

Worley takes his achievements and experience with him to his new job as the director of mission support at Headquarters Air Force Space Command at Peterson AFB.

During his final commander's call here June 5, Worley said he would love to go out on the same kind of high note in which he came in on.

"I know the new commander has a great team of people to help him make the adjustment," the commander said.

"I'm proud to have taken command of such an outstanding group of professionals. The men and women of Team Vandenberg have proven time and time again that they're the best of the best," Worley said.

"Thank you for your tremendous dedication. It has been truly an honor and a privilege serving at Vandenberg."

Screening team looks for new AF recruiters at Vandenberg

By AIRMAN JUANIKA GLOVER
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

■ A recruiter screening team from Randolph AFB, Texas, gives Team Vandenberg the opportunity to learn more about recruiter duty during a one-hour briefing in the Airman Leadership School auditorium here at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The recruiter screening team briefing focuses on the benefits of being a recruiter and addresses many of the rumors associated with recruiting duty, said Tech. Sgt. Robert Schultz, 30th Mission Support Squadron Airman Leadership School instructor.

He said requirements that each potential recruiter must meet in order to fulfill the needs of the recruiting field include the following:

- ♦ Rank – senior airman to master sergeant;
- ♦ Years in service – less than 17 years;
- ♦ Enlisted performance reports – three or above within the last three years;
- ♦ Time on station – minimum of two years;
- ♦ Physical profile – minimum requirement
- ♦ Dental classification – level two;
- ♦ Drivers license – valid from any state.

A waiver is available to those who don't meet minimum time on station requirements. Along with the eligibility requirements, there are also requirements from a personal standpoint.

"All applicants must be career committed, regardless of their Air Force specialty and be qualified in his or her career field," Schultz said. "Every eligible applicant must be outstanding in appearance, military bearing, conduct and past performance."

The length of a recruiting tour is three years with the option to extend one year at a time under the Recruiter Extension Program. This is another of the many benefits that come with recruiting, the instructor said.

"Although stability is one of the most attractive features of recruiting duty, there are associated constraints," he said. "Once placed in a stabilized status, individuals normally remain in that status until completion of the entire tour."

While in stabilized status, recruiters are ineligible to volunteer for overseas assignments, retraining or technical school except when the application coincides with a scheduled rotation.

"The benefits of being a recruiter are autonomy, providing service to the Air Force, and being an 'ambassador in blue,'" Schultz said.

He said living in civilian communities where commissary, exchange, medical, and other government facilities are not readily available is more expensive than being on or near an Air Force base. Therefore, recruiters receive special duty assignment pay of $375 per month. However, this pay is not designed to offset the expenses associated with living off base.

"Because recruiting is a sales profession, the recruiter must tailor daily activities to the availability of prospective applicants and community influencers. This often requires irregular hours and some periods of (temporary duty) away from home," Schultz said.

"To put it simply, as an Air Force recruiter, you must be willing to live the Air Force core value of 'Service before Self' at all times," he said. "But this is only the tip of the sword," he added. Recruiters are also expected to interact with civic and community organizations, establish rapport with school officials, and direct an effective school visitation plan.

"It is truly a challenging and refreshing experience. The recruiter plans the work, and then works the plan; direct supervision is usually very limited," Schultz said.

Recruiters are chosen from two sources, volunteers and selectees. Volunteers are preferred, however, if a requirement remains unfilled, the recruiter selection process mandates that the AF Personnel Center select the most eligible member to fill those requirements. Once selected for recruiting service, applicants attend a seven-week school at Lackland AFB, Texas. Upon successful completion of the recruiting course, new recruiters return to their duty stations and process for a normal move.

"The goal of successful recruiting is productively meeting monthly recruiting goals," Schultz said. Competition from other armed services and the private sector is keen, and recruiters must work hard to attain their assigned recruiting goals.

The beginning of an airman's Air Force career frequently starts with a visit to a recruiting office. Information obtained from a recruiter is often the deciding factor for someone thinking about a career in the Air Force. Therefore, Air Force recruiting officials set out to recruit and train those people to represent the best of what the Air Force has to offer.

To the men and women of Team Vandenberg,

As Lori and I approach the end of our time at Vandenberg, we remember back to May 30, 2001 when we began what can only be described as a challenging, rewarding, and magnificent experience.

Over these two amazing years, we have been consistently inspired by your dedication to mission success and your unflinching commitment to excellence. Together we have accomplished much, and each of you can be justifiably proud of your role in making this wing and base the best in Air Force Space Command.

We offer our most heartfelt thanks to the men and women of Team Vandenberg and our beautiful Central Coast communities for your tremendous support and sincere friendship. You have made this assignment the highlight of our Air Force career.

We wish each of you God's blessings and His peace always.

Chief encourages Team V to sow seeds

By COMMAND CHIEF MASTER SGT. STEVE CROCKER
14th Air Force

Are you a good farmer? No, this is not an article from the Farmer's Almanac... but since Vandenberg is located in such a beautiful agricultural region of California, I'm reminded of a great story about growing things, which can be applied to everyday life.

Every year a farmer entered his corn in the state fair competition where he always won a blue ribbon. After another successful crop and another blue ribbon, a newspaper reporter decided to do some research and find out the secret of this farmer's success.

The reporter discovered that the farmer shared his best seed with his neighbors.

"How can you afford to share your seed with your neighbors when they are entering corn in competition with yours each year?" the reporter asked.

The farmer replied, "The wind picks up pollen from the ripening corn and swirls it from field to field.

"If my neighbors grow inferior corn, cross-pollination will steadily degrade the quality of my corn. If I am to grow good corn, I must help my neighbors grow good corn, too."

This farmer understood that to improve his own crop, he must take an active interest in the crop of his neighbors.

What a wonderful concept we can apply at work and at home.

"We all must ... plant only the best 'seeds' of professionalism"

14TH AIR FORCE COMMAND CHIEF
MASTER SGT. STEVE CROCKER

When we share our expertise – our counsel, our labor, our willingness to help each other – we too can improve the quality of the "crop" of our neighbors, our families, our co-workers and, consequently, ourselves.

We must also consider the ramifications of sowing "bad seeds" in the sense of poor attitudes, poor choice of words, poor decisions, a poor appearance or setting a poor example. As the best seed produces good crops, so too will the opposite occur.

We all must be worthy of emulation in a positive way, and do our very best to plant only the best "seeds" of professionalism, work ethics, attitude, language, appearance, etc., to enhance the quality of life of those whose lives we touch each and every day.

There is a lot to be said for the art of making things grow. We must all make a conscious effort to only sow the best kind of "seeds" at home and at work to become successful farmers of the most important crop Team Vandenberg has – our people.

Base officials answer often-asked bicycle safety questions

By DOUG HARMON AND
MASTER SGT. WESLEY ASLESON
30th Space Wing Safety and 30th Security Forces Squadron

In the past couple of months, base safety and security forces personnel have noticed an increasing trend in base personnel not complying with base instructions for "Rules of the Road." The following frequently asked questions are designed to enhance awareness for everyone living and working on Vandenberg.

Q: I'm over 18 years of age. California law doesn't require me to wear a helmet unless I'm under 18. Why do I have to wear it on base?

A: The Department of Defense mandates everyone, including dependents, contractors and retirees, who rides a bicycle on a military installation wear a bicycle helmet approved by either the American National Standards Institute or the Snell Memorial Foundation.

Q: I've been stopped by security police and told I must wear a helmet if I'm on roller blades. Why is that?

A: With safety in mind, the installation commander has gone one step further in the helmet requirement, and included roller bladders, skateboarders, and scooter riders. Basically, riding anything not motorized, which propels you faster than running, requires the use of a helmet.

Q: I live off base, so my kids don't need helmets if they are skateboarding or roller blading, right?

A: Wrong, they do. In January of 2003, California expanded the existing bicycle helmet law and enacted the following:

A person under 18 years of age shall not operate a bicycle, a non-motorized scooter, or a skateboard, nor shall they wear in-line or roller skates, nor ride upon a bicycle, a non-motorized scooter, or a skateboard as a passenger, upon a street or any other public bicycle path or trail unless that person is wearing a properly fitted and fastened bicycle helmet that meets the standards of either the American Society for Testing and Materials or the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission, or standards subsequently established by those entities. This requirement also applies to a person who rides upon a bicycle while in a restraining seat that is attached to the bicycle or in a trailer towed by the bicycle.

NOTE: In light of this new law, current 30th Space Wing instruction rewrites will mirror the new California law. However, it will apply to all personnel on

BICYCLE SAFETY TIPS:

- When using crosswalks, dismount and walk the bicycle across the crosswalk.
- Lock the bicycle if it is unattended.
- Park so as not to obstruct pedestrian or other vehicular traffic.
- Stop and yield to approaching traffic when emerging from an alley, driveway, or building.
- Never assume the right-of-way over other moving vehicles.
- Use bicycle paths when available.
- Ride to the extreme right side of the roadway in the same direction as the traffic flow in areas where bicycle lanes are not provided.

the installation, regardless of age.

Q: Why can't I bicycle, jog or roller-skate on California Boulevard?

A: The installation commander has designated the sidewalk along California Boulevard from the Santa Maria Gate to 13th Street as a bike lane. Due to traffic concerns and roadway constraints, bicyclists, walkers and joggers must use this sidewalk in lieu of the street.

Q: While bicycling, the security forces stopped me because I didn't stop at a stop sign; since when is this a rule?

A: California traffic laws require bicyclists to comply with the California Vehicle Code and obey all traffic signs, signals and rules the same as a vehicle operator, including operating under the influence.

Q: What are the rules for headphones and walkmans on base? I've been told several different things.

A: The Department of Defense prohibits the wearing of portable headphones, earphones, or other listening devices while operating a motor vehicle and while jogging, running, bicycling, skating or skateboarding on roads and streets on DoD installations.

Use of these devices impairs driving and masks or prevents recognition of emergency signals, alarms, announcements, the approach of vehicles, and human speech. The installation commander has localized this DoD policy in the Installation Motor Vehicle Code and included walking. The prohibition does not apply on jogging trails or the base track.

In an effort to enhance public awareness of helmet requirements, security forces will proactively focus on helmet violators. In order to reach a "zero tolerance" or 100 percent compliance policy, several options are available to patrols:

Over the next two weeks, patrolmen will stop violators and advise them of the helmet requirement. The violator will be directed to dismount the bicycle or remove the equipment until an approved helmet is in place.

Violators observed after the two-week public awareness period will be subject to the following:

For bicyclists, offenders 18 years and older will be stopped and cited under the base Motor Vehicle Code. They will be directed to immediately dismount the bicycle until an approved helmet is in place. Juveniles will be escorted to their residence for direct contact with the military sponsor. Military sponsors will be cited for the violation.

Please keep in mind, California driving laws apply to bicycles as well as motor vehicles and repeat helmet offenders may have their bicycle operating privileges suspended or revoked.

For roller bladders, skateboarders and scooter operators, offenders will be directed to dismount or remove the equipment on the spot until an approved helmet is in place. Juveniles will be escorted to their residence for direct contact with the military sponsor.

Security forces may also consider seizure of the bicycle or equipment for habitual offenders pending resolution of the matter with the organization commander or sponsor.

Team V firefighters donate $27,000

By AIRMAN 1ST CLASS BRYAN FRANKS
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

With sirens sounding and lights blazing, a procession of local and county emergency response vehicles entered Vandenberg June 6 to pick up $27,000 for burn survivors.

The Vandenberg Professional Firefighters Local F-116 donated the money to the Firefighters Quest for Burn Survivors as a part of the annual Quest Burn Relay.

Quest was founded after six firefighters were burned during the 1996 Southern California Malibu Brush Fire, said Tom Propst, Glendale Fire Department. It's a nonprofit organization established and run by firefighters and civilians to help people who have burn injuries.

The organization collects money throughout the year and then funnels the money to local burn centers as well as burn victims and their families.

The burn relay is the culmination of the fund raising that's taken place over the past year, said Vandenberg Fire Capt. Gregory Leptich. It's also a way of making people aware of the program.

More than 70 agencies took part in the relay this year, raising more than $105,000. The Vandenberg Fire Department made the largest contribution.

The relay is a collection route that travels through the different communities picking up donations from the local and county fire departments. Along with a check, the department adds a fire truck to the caravan for the day and they lead the procession to the next stop, Leptich said. The northern leg of the relay started in Santa Maria. From there they turned on their sirens and lights and headed down the coast picking up 11 more checks and trucks.

The relay's four legs converged in Simi Valley Ventura County Fire Station 41 June 6 symbolizing the end of a year of fund raising, Leptich said.

"We drive down the coast with sirens and lights blazing for publicity and as a reminder to the citizens, so when we start coming around fund raising, they know where the money is going," Leptich said.

Quest does not decide where the money goes, rather the agencies donating the money do.

Once Quest receives all of the donations, they begin cutting checks to the recipients specified by the agencies.

"We tell Quest who gets our donation. It only makes sense that the money raised should go to the area where it was raised," Leptich said. "The money that we raised will go to Grossman's Burn Center, Fresno Burn Hospital, the International Association of Firefighters burn research and the Alisa Ann Ruch Champ Camp."

The Vandenberg Fire Department has been Quest's top contributor for the past four years, due mainly to the great success

Santa Barbara County firefighter Howard Orr gives a "High-5" to rescue partner Duke during a stop at Vandenberg June 6 as part of the 2003 FireFighter's Quest for Burn Survivors relay.

Vandenberg Fire Capt. Greg Leptich talks to burn survivors June 6 about the various uses of contributions collected during the Quest Burn Relay. The money collected is for burn survivors and their families. Leptich has led Vandenberg to collect more than $50,000 for Quest over the past three years.

of the Central Coast Firefighters Charity Golf Tournament, which Leptich spearheads, said Vandenberg Fire Chief Mark Farias.

"I work real hard to make it a fun event.

I think that's why it's so successful," Leptich said. "Before we started the golf tournament, we would donate around $250 a year. But the first year of the tournament, we wrote a check for $11,000 and that number has been growing ever since."

Leptich said he spends half of a year planning the one-day tournament, but all that work pays off when he gets to write a check to a good cause.

Unit changes name, not mission

By 2ND LT. JENNIFER WHITAKER
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

Thursday marked a historic date for the 534th Training Squadron as it united with the 533rd Training Squadron under the command of Lt. Col. Bart Beisner.

Lt. Col. A.J. Fernandez, former 534th Training Squadron commander, closed the book on his squadron with an inactivation ceremony Thursday.

This was the third time in its history that the squadron was inactivated since its establishment as the 534th Bombardment Squadron during World War II, said Master Sgt. Peter Caputo, 381st Training Group historian.

Caputo said the bombardment squadron was inactivated in 1945, brought back up in 1947, and inactivated again in 1949. The squadron then lay dormant for 45 years.

"The 534th's space operations training mission began with the activation of the 1013 Combat Crew Training Squadron in December of 1985, when they were tasked to manage all combat crew qualification training within Air Force Space Command," Caputo said.

Air Education and Training Command activated the 534th TRS at Schriever AFB, Colo. in 1994, after responsibility for space training changed hands several times. The squadron re-located to Vandenberg in 1996, Caputo said.

"While active here, the 534th TRS conducted Initial Qualification Training for the Air Force's space operations squadrons, providing on-orbit command and control of more than 50 operational satellites in support of the Department of Defense and the National Command Authorities," said 2nd Lt. Matthew Hane, 392nd Training Squadron.

Hane said the squadron trained satellite vehicle operators for Global Positioning System, Defense Support Plan, Defense Satellite Communication System Phase III, and MILSTAR satellite systems.

"Additionally, the 534th TRS conducted Enlisted Space Prerequisite Training, providing enlisted personnel with the basic knowledge and skills necessary to perform duties associated with the space systems operations specialist career field," Hane said.

While the 534th TRS no longer exists in name, its mission continues as the 533rd TRS. According to the 533rd TRS mission statement, that mission is to "train the best space professionals to operate and support Department of Defense space systems."

Military Sentinel Web site compiles military-specific consumer complaints

By KATHLEEN REHM
American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON - Officials from the Department of Defense and Federal Trade Commission have teamed up to provide DOD military and civilian employees an outlet for consumer complaints.

"Military personnel, DOD civilians and their families face unique challenges every day trying to deal with consumer-protection issues," said Charles Abell, assistant secretary of defense for force management policy.

Such issues, he said, include nonstandard work schedules, lengthy absences from home, frequent relocations, the privacy of personal information, and remote duty locations far from normal U.S. consumer protection channels.

"Military Sentinel will help us address these challenges by creating a database on which scam artists and others who seek to defraud individuals in the military community will be identified," Abell said.

FTC Chairman Timothy Muris explained the project has a threefold goal.

First, it provides an outlet for DOD personnel to make consumer complaints "and be counted."

Muris said the complaints are automatically added to the FTC's Consumer Sentinel, an "identity-theft-data clearinghouse."

Data is also available in service-specific breakdowns for military law enforcement, legal agencies and installation commanders.

"In that way, frauds can be identified, shut down and ultimately prevented," Muris said.

Finally, the site provides educational materials on consumer protections to military and DOD civilians and their families.

"These include practical, plain-language tips on understanding credit and lending issues, avoiding work-at-home and advance-fee loan scams, and recognizing fraudulent offers whether they come through the mail, the telephone, or the Internet," Muris said.

All these features are available through the Military Sentinel site at www.consumer.gov/military.

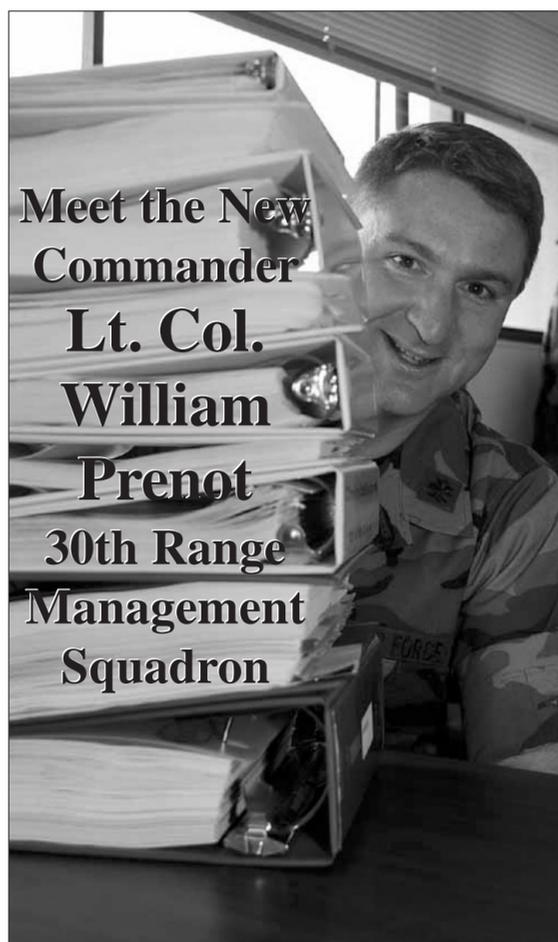

According to Capt. Zach Ware, 30th Space Wing assistant staff judge advocate, the 30th SW legal assistance attorneys encourage members to use this tool extensively.

The legal office here can maximize the program's effectiveness, Ware said.

Muris said the site is important because it helps protect the people who protect America.

"As we continue to rely on the men and women of the armed forces to protect our liberties, I am proud that the FTC is doing all we can to ensure that they receive the protection they need from unscrupulous businesses and scam artists," he said.

The 30th SW legal office is available for walk-in assistance 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and 3:30 to 4:30 Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Meet the New Commander Lt. Col. William Prenot 30th Range Management Squadron

Significant thing about your new unit: It is new, and it's entirely civilian. What I have learned so far is that these are professionals who care about getting the job done right. I'm impressed with what I see so far and am anxious to learn the numerous roles and responsibilities.

Hometown: Born in Chicago, but hometown is now Colorado Springs, Colo.
Time in service: 17 years
Recent career history: I spent two years at Vandenberg as the maintenance supervisor in the 2nd Space Launch Squadron from July 1999 to August 2001, and have been on the Air Force Space Command Inspector General team since August '01. I have been missiles and space for my entire career.

Leadership philosophy: Trust your people to do the mission and give them the support they require to get it done.

Short-term goals: Meet all the people of the RMS and learn what they do, then make sure they have the resources they need to get the job done and stay out of their way while they do it.

Personal information: I've been married to Tammy for 13 years. My son Josh is nine. They are in Colorado Springs right now trying to sell or rent our home there. I am eager to have them here with me.

Hobbies: golf and almost any other sport.

What is the most exciting thing that has happened to you during your Air Force career? I met and briefed a group of Russian general officers during Minuteman II deactivation at Whiteman AFB in the early '90's. It was incredible to see first-hand the people against whom we waged the Cold War and to meet them on a missile site and show them the empty hole prepped for demolition.

Who is your favorite leader in history and why? King David - he was a real person with many flaws, but was committed and dedicated to his God and his people and was, in my opinion, the most effective leader of all time.

Who is your role model and why? I have two - my father, a great man with incredible knowledge and insight, upon whom I lean heavily for advice; and my mentor Donn Headley, a man of great faith, moral courage and a true friend.

What do you like best about the Air Force? The feeling of unity and the spirit of teamwork. I know there are corporate jobs where the team is large and the mission is important. This cannot compare to the true unity created when all members of the Air Force team are dedicated to the team's success and to the success and security of each individual.

911 hang up - 10: 20 a.m.

Vandenberg Fire Dispatch received a 911 emergency line hang-up from a home on Cedar Street. Investigation revealed a military member's toddler was playing with the telephone. Patrolmen checked the home and found everything in order.

Deer strike - 12:40 p.m.

A civilian employee reported striking a deer while driving on Coast Road. The driver lost control of his vehicle and overturned as a result of the accident. The vehicle sustained major damage without injury to the driver.

Concerned neighbor - 6:54 p.m.

A military member discovered a child wandering on Noble Drive. Security forces contacted the military sponsor. The sponsor said the child wandered from the home through the open garage door.

Jun. 7

Suspected threat - 2 p.m.

A military member reported receiving a threat from an ex-military member once assigned to his unit. He stated the suspect inferred to a third party she was capable of accessing the base to reach him. Further investigation revealed the suspect held a limited privileges identification card. The alleged threat was unfounded.

Jun. 8

Loud noise - 1:03 a.m.

Both a military member and civilian employee reported loud noise coming from the Pacific Coast Club. Patrolmen contacted the night manager who attributed the noise to patrons outside. He advised patrolmen his employees would monitor the outside areas.

Screaming child - 10:22 p.m.

An anonymous caller reported a child screaming on Cedar Street. Responding patrolmen contacted the military member of the home in question and found everything in order.

Loud noise - 10:34 p.m.

An anonymous caller reported loud noise from a room in Centaur Dormitory. Patrolmen responded and the military occupant quelled the noise.

June 10

Intoxication - 1:05 a.m.

An Army lieutenant colonel called the Vandenberg Security Forces Control Center to report a man being belligerent and knocking repeatedly on his door in billeting. Responding patrolmen contacted a Navy lieutenant junior grade who was highly intoxicated. Patrolmen escorted the lieutenant to his room and ordered him to stay there.

The 30th Security Forces Squadron participates in the Law Enforcement Torch Run June 3 to raise funds and awareness for the California Special Olympics. Eighteen 30th SFS members carried the torch from the Missile V and out the Lompoc Gate to Central Avenue in Lompoc where they passed it on to other law enforcement officers. The torch reached its destination Friday evening to kick off the Special Olympics Summer Games in Long Beach, Calif. The local Law Enforcement Torch Run association raised $97,000 this year to support Special Olympics.

Airmen forfeit pay, rank in three Article 15 punishments

By STAFF SGT. CARTER SCHRAGE
30th Space Wing Legal office

■ Three Vandenberg airmen received punishment in May under Article 15 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Their crimes and punishments are as follows:

A 30th Security Forces Squadron senior airman violated

Article 112a of the UCMJ, wrongful use of marijuana. The airman was reduced in rank to airman first class and forfeits $250 per month for two months.

The forfeiture was suspended through November 4. When an assigned punishment is suspended, it does not go into effect unless the member commits further offenses within the suspension period.

A 30th SFS airman first class violated Article 92 of the UCMJ, dereliction of duty, by sleeping while in an idle security forces patrol vehicle. The airman was reduced in rank to airman, forfeits $250 per month for two months, and was assigned 15 days of extra duty.

The reduction in rank and the extra duty were both suspended through November 26.

A 30th Civil Engineer Squadron airman first class violated Article 92 of the UCMJ, dereliction of duty, by leaving the assigned duty section without proper authorization. The airman was reduced in rank to airman.

576th wins volleyball championship

By Tech. Sgt. Mark McKinney
30th Space Wing Public Affairs

■ The base intramural volleyball season is now a thing of the past. June 6 marked the conclusion of the season, which saw each of the league's participating teams show great improvement and real promise. That being said, when the base championships were held, the same two teams from last year's championship were knocking on the door once again.

The 576th Flight Test Squadron and 30th Civil Engineer Squadron took to the fitness center court to determine the 2003 base intramural volleyball league champions. Entering the championship match, the 576th needed only to win the first 2 of 3 games to claim the title, while CES represented the losers bracket, thus requiring a win in match one to force a second go round.

The two coaches, Todd Burch, 576th FLTS, and Joseph Krause, 30th CES, knew exactly what to expect from their teams and each other.

"CES is a well-coached team that we knew coming in would be ready to fight all the way through," said Coach Burch. "During the season we split matches and none of the games were ever easy."

Krause was equally complimentary of his rival.

"Todd has a team with a lot of firepower, but we came into the match knowing that we could play with them," Coach Krause said. "They won the title last year and it was pretty clear that their team was the top squad. This year, each time we played, the matches were competitive and I think both teams believed they could win each time. There was no fear on the part of my folks."

As the title match unfolded, it appeared that the 576th would run away and hide. They jumped out to an early 8-0 lead in game one on the strength of coach Burch's serving. Rafael Lechon's jump serving continued the early match dominance as he aced serve after serve.

Overall team experience was a major factor in the 576th show of force.

"All of these folks have ability and a good amount of experience," Burch said. "Lechon is a good example of what this team has to offer in terms of experience. He came to the base from a team that won the championship at his last base and then most of the rest of this team was part of last year's championship."

Lechon's fire was still burning well after the last ball was spiked.

"I love to play the game," he said. "I've played for 14 years in school, on clubs and at all levels."

Mark Rische was the most imposing player. He's a powerful jumper who knows what to do when rising above the net.

"I've played for a while, maybe not as long as many of the other players, but when I started playing in college it came pretty quick," Rische said. "Everyone on this court has a little something to offer."

Rische offered a kill shot that was seldom fended off. During one standout sequence toward the end of game one, Rische put away three consecutive kills that left the fitness center crowd in a buzz and the 576th team inspired.

After the 576th clearly dominated the first game, the match appeared to be all but over.

In the end, being at full strength proved to be the deciding difference leading to the 576th victory in game two and being crowned base champions.

"It's definitely nice to win the big prize again, but the truth of the matter is they were a bit short-handed," Coach Burch said. "I don't want to take anything away from what we've accomplished, but it's only fair to note that they weren't at full strength today. When all is said and done though, that's how sports work out sometimes."

Talking with both coaches, the impression is that they're not done hunting one another down just yet.

"A couple years ago we began to improve, last year we became pretty good and made it to the championships, this year we honestly had a great team and got stuck playing without all of our folks today," Coach Krause said. "We won't make any excuses, I just think it's important to note that as well as we played today, it wasn't our absolute best. I'm sure we'll continue to just get better."

Did You Know?

Military members looking for a quick return home from a deployment are mistaken if they think a court-martial is the way to go.

Military members are not returned to their home station when they commit crimes while deployed. However, they are still entitled to their rights under Article 31 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

When crimes occur at a deployed site, attorneys and paralegals from the regional area defense counsel are assigned on temporary duty to counsel the member. During a court-martial, a military judge, court reporter and assistant counsels for both sides also go TDY to the defendant's location.

The Vandenberg Thrift Shop has new summer hours!

Open Tuesdays only from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 4 to 6 p.m.
